

Bryan D. Larson
Commercial Attaché
Embassy of the United States of America, Mexico City

Bryan D. Larson is a Commercial Attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City. He is responsible for promoting U.S. exports to Mexico and advocating on behalf of U.S. business interests in several sectors, including information and communication technology, education and training, and franchising.

Mr. Larson was previously a Commercial Attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Seoul, Korea, where he worked on U.S.-Korea pharmaceutical negotiations, telecommunications liberalization, intellectual property rights protection, and information technology trade promotion. While in Korea, Mr. Larson was a Visiting Professor at the Graduate School of International Studies at Chung-Ang University, where he taught a course in international negotiations.

Prior to joining the U.S. & Foreign Commercial Service, Mr. Larson worked in the Department of Commerce as an International Trade Specialist in the Office of Information Technology and the Trade Information Center. Mr. Larson entered U.S. Government service in 1995 as Presidential Management Intern.

Mr. Larson is a native of Denver, Colorado. He received an MA in International Communication from The American University in Washington, DC, in 1995 and a BA in International Affairs from the University of Colorado at Boulder in 1991. He is married to Ingrid Larson, who is a Foreign Service Officer with the State Department, and has two children, Henry age three and Eleanor age six months.